CAC 2018, Shanghai

Because of the prestige and importance of this international trade expo, RLF will once again introduce new products to the market as it expands and renews its specialty liquid fertilisers. This is always an exciting time for the Company as it rises to meet the challenges faced by its customers, particularly those within the Asia region marketplace.

Who will attend?

RLF's Managing Director Mr Ken Hancock and the Director Global Markets Mr Gavin Ball will travel from Australia to be present at the Exhibition. RLF's China-based management and sales team will also be very pleased to meet with current customers and clients, and to make themselves available as new contacts and relationships are established.

About CAC

CAC is the world's largest agrochemical exhibition and integrates new product display, technical exchange and trade talks. It therefore becomes the world's largest one-stop shop for active participation in international agricultural trade and cooperation at all levels of the industry. Not only does it feature fertilisers, pesticides, seeds, crop protection equipment, production and packaging equipment and logistical support services, but provides real opportunity for innovative discussion and exchange for future developments that will support the goals and desired outcomes for the global agricultural industry as a whole.

CAC 2017, Shanghai

2019 will see over 73,000sqm of exhibiting area with exhibitors from more than 20 countries. It is expected that the Exhibition will attract more than 33,000 visitors. More information about CAC and its planning and organisation for 2019 can be viewed here.

RLF is proud of its connection with CAC and is once again looking forward to establishing its presence at the Exhibition. RLF Managing Director Ken Hancock said, "our commitment continues again this year, when we will introduce some new innovative products to the Asia market. It will be good to meet our existing customers once again, as well as having the opportunity to make new contacts and establish further meaningful working relationships. The entire RLF Team is excited about its involvement with CAC 2019".
